

Jožef Stefan Institute

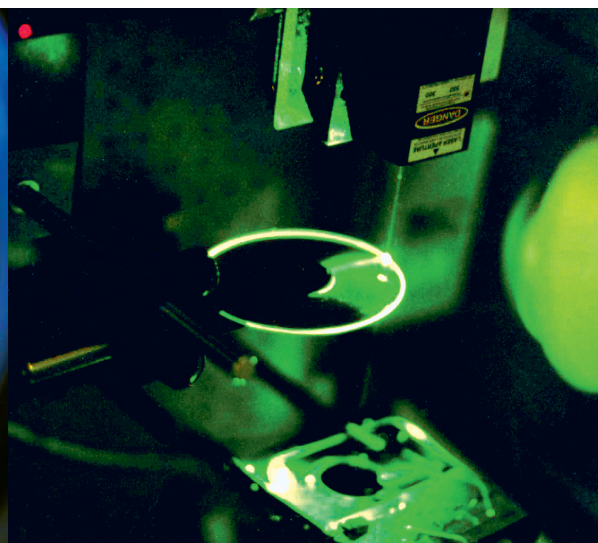

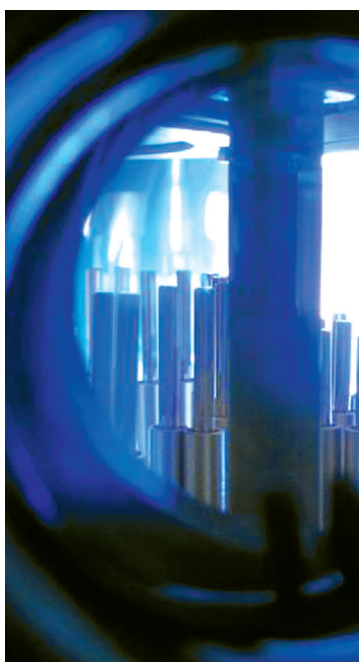

Jumping robot
[photo: Department for automatics, biokibernetics and robotics]

The cleaning of tool surface with argon ions from low pressure plasma before deposition of PVD-hard coating [photo: P. Panjan]

Experiment with the photoinduced infrared spectroscopy method
[photo: S. Stres]

JSI is the largest Slovenian institute for research in the natural, technical and environmental sciences. By cooperating with industry and educating top-level Slovenian specialists, the institute contributes to the development of Slovenia as a whole.

The institute carries out top-level technology research in areas such as nanotechnology, new materials, biotechnology, management and production, communications, computer technologies, knowledge technologies, environmental and reactor technologies.

Jožef Stefan Institute, Ljubljana, Slovenia

Jožef Stefan Institute, Ljubljana, Slovenia

Jamova 39, SI-1001 Ljubljana

Tel: +386 (0)1 477 39 00, fax: +386 (0)1 251 93 85, e-mail: info@ijs.si

www.ijs.si